NURSING
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

SUNY Broome Community College has full-time, tenure-track appointments as Assistant Professor available beginning Fall 2016 in the ACEN accredited associate degree nursing program. Is it the right time in your career to make a change? Becoming part of our dedicated nursing faculty will allow you to play a critical role in the educational experience, while providing you with more flexibility and time at home than traditional nursing positions. Some evening and weekend assignments available on a voluntary basis. Master’s degree in nursing is required. Additional graduate coursework in appropriate field is desirable. Minimum three years teaching experience or an appropriate combination of teaching, relevant work experience and scholarly activity is required. Must be NYS licensed RN or eligible for same, and have the ability to teach a variety of nursing subjects in classroom and clinical setting.

Preference will be given to applicants with demonstrated interest and ability in the use of alternative and innovative instructional methods, including technology-supported learning. The successful candidate will have strong administrative and clinical skills. Candidates comfortable in a learner-centered environment and committed to the community college mission are encouraged to apply. Salary range is $48,500 to $50,423. Salary offer will be based on qualifications.

For full consideration, application materials must be received by April 29, 2016. Interested applicants may apply online at: http://www.sunybroome.edu/employment. SUNY Broome invites and encourages applications from women and minorities. AA/EOE
