

Home Sweet Home: SUNY Broome students move in September 1, 2015

By John Miller

On Saturday, August 29, the freshman class of 2017 moved into their new room in the Student Village.

Kerrigan Hastings, from Big Flats, NY, has always loved criminal justice. In high school, Kerrigan went on a ride along with a New York State Trooper that led her to major in Homeland Security. She chose SUNY Broome not only for the “clean and amazing” residence hall, but because it’s one of only a few schools that offer this major. After SUNY Broome, she plans on transferring to a four year school. After she graduates she wants to become an agent in the CIA – and not just for the free travel.

Tiffany Clifton, from Curacao (near Aruba), wants to work for her home country. To do this, she’s majoring in International Business. Tiffany found her suite to be “cool” and her roommates to be “chill.” After she graduates from SUNY Broome, she plans on transferring to Florida International University.

Julias Gutierrez is quite the character. He is a Sound Engineering major so he can create and produce music. In between posing for photos, Julias told us that he prefers R&B music and is from Westchester. When he was touring the school, the new residence hall really caught his eye because “it feels like [we’re] living in an apartment.” Julias modestly brushed off the title of DJ but said he’d happily perform at campus events.

Justin Burwell is a new RA. The Communication major said the incoming students are in for “a nice experience,” and he recommends new students get out and meet as many people as possible. He said the school has a lot of events planned to help students mingle. If you have any questions for Justin, you can email him at burwelljs@acad.sunybroome.edu or you can stop by, anytime, at his room — 305 — in the Student Village.

All of the students I spoke with were excited to start the Fall 2015 semester and meet new and possibly lifelong, friends at SUNY Broome.

John Miller is a SUNY Broome graduate who is now a Binghamton University student. This is his last story for the Buzz, and we all wish him the best! You rock, John.

Filed Under: Uncategorized