

SUNY COIL Opportunity: Collaborate with Colleagues in Latin America

July 1, 2015

Dear Colleagues,

As you know, one of our colleagues from Monterrey, MX, Alfonso Guevara, visited SUNY Broome this summer as part of SUNY COIL's (Collaborative Online International Learning) Latin America 2 (LAA2) Initiative. SUNY Broome faculty members Lynda Carroll and Myriam Stanton are participating in the LAA2 Initiative, and will be COIL-ing their ANT and ESL courses with colleagues in Mexico in the Fall. As part of a separate program, I will be COIL-ing my SOS course with a colleague in Celaya, Mexico in the Fall.

*SUNY COIL has announced another opportunity (LAA3) to collaborate with colleagues in Latin America. It would involve doing some training in Cuernavaca, Mexico in September with a partner, and offering a COIL course in Spring 2016. The deadline for applying via a post on the COIL website is July 8.

If you are interested, please look over the attached notice. Contact Jan McCauley mccauleyje@sunybroome.edu, or me at mckennakm@sunybroome.edu for more information and to let us know if you are interested in applying.

On another note: We have also had faculty apply to collaborate with Turkish colleagues on another SUNY COIL grant and are hoping to hear that their applications have been accepted.

Don't hesitate to contact us to learn more about COIL. There are also opportunities to collaborate that don't involve any travel.

Best,
Kathleen
