

'The Traffickers' now available on YouTube

July 6, 2015

"The Traffickers," a film featuring the late Professor Angelo Zuccolo's last performance, is now available for viewing on YouTube.

"We produced "The Traffickers" to test what we could accomplish; to see if we could, indeed, create a feature motion picture," said co-producers Christopher Keeler and Jacqueline Sissenstein, who thanked the film's actors, crew, location managers and supporters.

While the original 68-minute version was shown recently at SUNY Broome, the film has grown to 80 minutes and sustained additional edits. "The Traffickers" was shot in Binghamton, Johnson City, Endicott and Endwell for $7,000. The cast is all local and includes Christopher Keeler, Talia Saraceno, James Gormley, Tony Yajko, and the late great Angelo Zuccolo.

The movie is located at: <https://youtu.be/1ICJPYHHIhA>

Keeler and Sissenstein are currently working on starting an online funding campaign for "The Dark Web." Check out the company web page at www.chenangoentertainment.com.

Filed Under: Uncategorized